

FutureCurious[®] the workshop

This is the perfect hands on guided workshop to explore your way forward, or the best way for both of us to figure out if we can collaborate and create together ongoing.

Your biggest threat is your impending irrelevance, often brought about by not knowing what you don't know, or even worse believing that what you know and do is all there is.

So let gets uncomfortable and see what's really waiting up ahead for you.

The ½ day journey begins with me delivering a 100% tailored purpose built FutureCurious keynote exploring the possible impacts and future(s) of your world, industry and business.

It then quickly changes gear and becomes real as you and your tribe embark on a hands-on journey designed to take you to meet your future business self.

The full day and multiple day journey continues on to collaboratively discover your future self, list and prioritise the opportunities and threats that might be waiting for you up ahead, explore your response(s) to them and what next steps you could take.

Who is this for and what will you end up with?

This workshop will work for groups of 1 to 250 people for any business, organisation, group, association, bcorp, social enterprise, or entrepreneur that wants to deep dive into their future, explore it, rummage around it, kick the tyres and see what might be possible.

This part keynote, part guided exercise, part provocative conversation will leave you with a firsthand multi-perspective view of what's ahead for you, your business and your industry between now and the future year you've chosen - most tribes prefer to travel to 2020 or 2026, but I've taken tribes as far out as 2060, so any stop between now, next, after next or beyond next is fine with me.

At the end of every workshop I guarantee you'll have a shopping list of practical, prioritised next steps that you can take away and immediately action, but how extensive the list is and how well explored each item is, will depend on how long we spend together. FCI
